This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

INTRODUCTION.

Here are the throngs descended from strong Walter,
No neck among them ever felt the halter;
They've sailed the seas from Hong Kong to Gibraltar,
On plain and hill have reared the home and altar—
Typhoon and blizzard never made them falter!
Some clans get fresh, our clan is growing salter.
Read well this book, and thank the Lord for Walter.

CHAS. N. SINNETT.

EDMORE, NORTH DAKOTA,
Thanksgiving Day, 1905.

The account of our Ancestor Walter Merryman varies but little among his descendants. He was kidnapped in an Irish port early in 1700 and brought to Boston, Mass. Here his so-called "passage money" was paid by a Mr. Simonton of Cape Elizabeth, Me., who faithfully taught him the ship carpenter's trade, near Portland. Both these men were sturdy Presbyterians and their good influence is seen unto the last generations of both families.

Mr. George F. Henley of South Portland, Me., writes me as follows: "I went with your grandfather, Capt. James Sinnett of Bailey's Island, Harpswell, Me., to see what we could learn about Ancestor Walter Merryman. We visited some old people, of Simonton descent, and were confirmed in our story of our Merryman ancestor, and that he remained with him some seven years."

Ancestor Walter Merryman married Elizabeth Potter and moved to the old farm not far above the Harpswell Center (Me.) Church. He was one of the most upright and sturdy of the early settlers of the town. The coat-of-arms of the Merrymans shows that the family was one of valor and worth across the seas. Some claim his ancestors were Scotch; others say they were English. It is the purpose of the author of this book to collect all early history of the Merrymans as soon as possible, and he will be very grateful for any help in this important work. The results of this research will be sent to all who are interested in the family history.

Elizabeth Potter was descended from Anthony Potter, b. in England, 1628, and came to Ipswich, Mass., 1688. He married Elizabeth Whipple.

Samuel Potter, son of this ancestor, married Joanna Woods.

David Potter, son of Samuel, was born at Ipswich, Mass., March 27, 1685, and married Mary Merriam of Lynn, Mass. In 1738 David Potter moved to Topsham, Me., with his three sons, William, James and Alexander. Elizabeth Potter is claimed to have been the daughter of David Potter and Mary Merriam. Nothing further has been found, save the well-known fact that this was a family of sturdy faith and deeds.

The sons of Ancestor Walter Merryman and Elizabeth Potter will each be traced in a separate section in the following pages. Of the daughters,

(2) Frances Merryman m., in Jan., 1766, Andrew Jack of the celebrated Scotch-Irish colony at Topsham, Me.

(2) Miriam Merryman m. Robert Potter of Topsham, Me.

(2) Mary Merryman m. Jonathan Weymouth, Dec. 14, 1775.

The author has many records of the descendants of these daughters, which will be given in the history of the families into which they married, as I am preparing a history of all the old families of Harpswell, Brunswick, Topsham, Bowdoinham, Bowdoin, etc.

Many thanks to the scores of people who have so kindly helped in the preparation of this book.

SECTION FIRST.

The descendants of Thomas Merryman [2], son of Ancestor Walter Merryman and Betsy Potter.

CHAPTER II.

Records of the second child of Thomas Merryman and Sarah Bailey:

(3) Thomas Merryman, b. 1765; d. Jan. 19, 1827 (62y.); m., April 12, 1786, Mary Melcher[2], b. Brunswick, Me., 1766; d. May 10, 1839 (73y.); daughter of Ancestor Joseph Melcher[1] of Brunswick, Me., and Mary Cobb.
(4) Timothy Merryman, b. Nov. 16, 1786; d. Mercer, Ill., April 19, 1873. "He was a faithful member of the Baptist church at Moline, Ill., and his children united with that church. He was rather a stout man, about five feet, eight inches, in height. A steady-going, hard-working man, and not very much of a talker. In Maine he was a ship carpenter by trade. He enlisted in the 1812 War. He was either an officer or had the promise of being one. His old record was well kept in the Illinois home. The war closed before he could do any service. Soon after his marriage he moved to Chesterville, Me., and all of his children were born in that town.

"In November, 1837, he moved to a farm in Mercer County, Ill., at Richland Grove on the Edwards River. On the stream he built a sawmill, which he and his boys ran in connection with the farm, mostly sawing hardwood lumber for themselves and their neighbors."

One who lived near says: "I had reason to feel proud of our relation to Timothy Merryman, as I glance back over the early settlement of Illinois. I was acquainted with each member of the family and knew their sterling qualities as pioneers in that great state, where they were always found on the side of the church and school and the building up of society and good citizenship. As most of the family were good vocal and instrumental musicians, they helped in scores of ways. The family was one of excellent habits. All the children had strong constitutions and lived to a good old age. They were sturdy Republicans."

The son, Timothy Dunning Merryman, of Los Angeles, Cal., says of the trip to Illinois: "In 1837, my mother, brothers, Ira and David, and sisters, Thirza and Elizabeth, and myself, started from Chesterville, Me., in a two-horse wagon. At Wheeling, Va., mother, brother Ira and sister Thirza, took a steamboat down the Ohio River and up the Mississippi to Rock Island, Ill., while Elizabeth, David and myself kept on by land to our new home. So I have traveled the whole breadth of the continent with team and wagon."

Timothy Merryman m., June 23, 1812, Elizabeth Dunning[4], b. Brunswick, Me., Wednesday, June 12, 1789; d. in Illinois Oct. 15, 1853; daughter of David Dunning[3] and Elizabeth Hunt; granddaughter of Lieut. James Dunning[2], b. in England 1691; d. Brunswick, Me., June 8, 1752; great-granddaughter of Ancestor Andrew Dunning[1] and Susan Bond.

(5) Albert Dunning Merryman, b. Chesterville, Me., Saturday, Nov. 7, 1812; d. Dec. 22, 1892; m., in Chesterville, Me., Aug. 25, 1836, Jane Patten, b. Wells, Me.; d. Sept. 17, 1905 (94y., 3m., 12d.); she went to Illinois just after the Black Hawk War and did not see the face of a white woman for months, as the nearest neighbors were miles away.

(6) Emily Merryman, b. Richland Grove Township, Mercer County, Ill., Sept. 9, 1837; resides Asheville, N. C.; m., Thursday, Dec. 13, 1860, at 7 o'clock p. m., Samuel Gowans Chancy, b. Chesterville, Me., Sept. 9, 1837; son of Josiah Chancy and Elizabeth Gowens. He learned the carpenter's trade of his father, who was a shipbuilder at Portland, Me.; worked at this about twenty years of his life; he was a hardware merchant for 12 years in Nebraska. He says, "I have improved all opportunities of preaching the Gospel, first as a Wesleyan Methodist, then as a Congregationalist, and now as a Seventh Day Adventist."

(7) Albert S. Chancy, b. Oct. 4, 1862; d. Oct. 1, 1863.

(4) Bailey Merryman, b. 1798; d. Jan. 20, 1858. After his marriage he settled on a farm at Bowdoin, Me., and remained there; buried in old cemetery at South Bowdoin, Me.; m. Mary Wilson[4], b. Dec., 1807; d. Dec. 5, 1896, daughter of Actor Wilson[3] and Affia Pennell; granddaughter of William Wilson[2] and Mary Patten; great-granddaughter of Ancestor Thomas Wilson[1].

(5) Robert Wilson Merryman, b. Bowdoin, Me., May 2, 1829; d. April 21, 1894. "His parents were respectable and well-to-do farming people. He was reared to agricultural pursuits, and attended the common schools of Bowdoin, Me. But at an early age he laid aside his books and commenced the active duties of life. He and his brother, Andrew C., having taken up the ship building industry, he learned the trade and worked in the shipyards of Pittston, Me., in 1855. The eastern lumbermen were then being attracted to the pine forests of Wisconsin. He went to that state, first locating at Fond du Lac, where he became associated with his brother, A. C., and Haynes Hunter, under the firm name, Merryman & Co., lumber manufacturers. Later, also, at Fond du Lac, these Merryman brothers associated themselves with John S. and Alexander McDonald, also Maine lumbermen and pioneer manufacturers of Wisconsin. R. W. Merryman remained at Fond du Lac until 1873; then went to Marinette, Wis., and founded the R. W. Merryman Lumber Co., with which he was connected, as its official head, until his death, April 21, 1894. For several years prior to his death, however, the management was for the most part entrusted to his nephew, R. C. Merryman, who has since continued its management. He entertained a paternal fondness for this nephew, many of the early years of whose life were passed in this uncle's house, where he was treated as a member of the family. Before his death he and his wife travelled considerably, often accompanied by friends in the capacity of guests. It was while he was returning from a trip through Florida that he was seized with a serious illness which terminated fatally at Lookout Mountain. He was a shrewd and thrifty man, greatly beloved by his friends and employees and widely esteemed for his unswerving integrity, strict honesty and admirable business methods. He substantially aided Marinette. He accumulated a comfortable competence, mainly of extensive investments in timber lands and profitable manufacturing operations. Religiously he was originally a Baptist, but, with his advancing years, his ideas trended to Universalism, in which faith he died. In political affiliations he was always a Republican, ever loyal to his party, but never at any time an office seeker." M., March 18, 1858, Carrie A. Colburn of Pittston, Me.; she was the daughter of Capt. Reuben Colburn; she is held in the highest esteem by all in Marinette, Wis.; no children.

(5) Andrew Curtiss Merryman, b. Bowdoin, Me., Dec. 22, 1831; d. of pneumonia at Exeter, Cal., 1905. He was one of the best known lumbermen of Wisconsin, and was a familiar person to most lumbermen in Northern Wisconsin, as well as in Chicago and Maine, having for the last 49 years been most actively engaged in the lumber manufacture in Wisconsin. The boyhood ambition of Mr. Merryman was of the most practical kind. He did not believe that the road to wealth and position could be travelled rapidly, but he determined to labor faithfully and diligently and rise above the conditions which surrounded him. When scarcely 17 years of age he began to work at shipbuilding at Middle Bay, Brunswick, Me., with Capt. Richard McManus, and soon became a competent shipwright. In 1855 he built the brig A. C. Merryman at Pittston, Me., and launched upon the business on his own account. When business depressions came in Maine he sturdily determined to seek a new field of labor. In 1855 he went to Fond du Lac, Wis., and although he had no practical experience in that line, he at once made preparations for prosecuting the lumber business. With but little capital he went into the dense forests of pine, entering, preëmpting and homesteading lands and laying solid foundations for future operations. He at once entered into the sawmill business at Fond du Lac and most successfully carried it on for 10 years. In 1866 he sold these interests to his brother, R. W. Merryman, and removed to Marinette, Wis., as a member of the firm of Hamilton, Merryman & Co., which purchased 62,000 acres of government land and built a large mill in 1868. From time to time the firm has added to this original purchase of land. The company has become one of the largest and most successful of the immense lumber manufacturing establishments along the Menominee River. From 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 feet of lumber is annually turned from timber on the stump to finished lumber at the mill. This is carried by the company's boats to Chicago, where its larger distributing yard is located. Up to the last, Mr. Merryman took an active part in this work, as well as in all the various strong enterprises in which he was helpful. He was interested in many paper and pulp mills and owned thousands of acres of standing timber in the red cedar country of the West. He was also an extensive orange grower and had large ranches at Exeter, Cal., where, in late years, he spent most of his winters.

Mr. Merryman was at all times prominent in Marinette affairs and has been closely identified with Marinette industries and municipal work since his residence in the city. He has been prominently identified with the Menominee & Marinette Paper Co., the A. W. Stevens Co., the Menominee River Fire Tug Co., the Merryman Manufacturing Co., the Menominee River Broom Co., the Marinette Flour Mill Co., the Watson Heating Co., the Menominee & Marinette Light and Traction Co., the Menominee Sugar Co. and the Oakwood Club. He attended personally to the details of most of his business. Unless it was absolutely impossible for him to be present, he was never known to miss a meeting of one of the companies in which he was a stockholder. Nevertheless, with all these business cares, he never forgot his family or friends. He was a model husband and father and neglected no slightest thing which would add to the comfort and pleasure of his family. With his friends he was known, as in his business, as a man of his word, and the expression, "His word is as good as his bond," has often been used in speaking of him. He was very fond of entertainment and loved to have his home full of happy friends.

Mr. Merryman was a great lover of nature and out-of-door life. There was nothing too small in woods or field to be beneath his notice, and on his hunting trips and excursions he would spend a large share of his time in looking up curios and relics. Every year he would take a party of his friends to Beechwood, his private hunting and fishing grounds, near Florence, on the Northwestern branch road, and would entertain them in royal style. Mr. Merryman was a thoroughly moral man and his friends who accompanied him on his camping and hunting trips, where all restraint was laid aside, often remarked of his cleanliness and manliness in all things. The men who rowed his boats while he was fishing were as carefully looked after as his guests and were never overworked or ill-treated. His charitable work and sympathy for those in suffering and need is known to all. He never used liquor or tobacco and was strongly affiliated with the Prohibition party and was nominated by that party for its high positions of trust and honor. M. SECTION SECOND.

Records of Hugh Merryman[2], son of Ancestor Walter Merryman[1]. Neither the date of his birth nor death could be found. Judging by the date of his wife's birth he must have been born about 1744. He lived for a long time on Birch Island, off Harpswell Neck. His home was noted as a place of great hospitality.

Hugh Merryman married Delight Bailey[5], who was born at Hanover, Mass., Jan. 12, 1745. Baptized, Hanover, Mass., Aug. 4, 1745. She was the daughter of Dea. Timothy Bailey[4] and his second wife, Hannah Curtiss. For the Bailey genealogy see the first page of this book.

(4) Joseph Merriman, b. Hartford, Ct., Oct. 27, 1815; d. Sept. 7, 1895. "He got his education in the little temple of learning, removed a generation or more ago, on Market Street, then called Dorr Street, Jesse Olney, pedagogue, and Flavius A. Brown, writing master. His father was lost at sea when he was 18 years old. He started working in a general store for $25 a year and board. A year later he was employed by Lester Sexton, a Bridge Street clothier, for $75 a year and board. Mr. Merriman said with a smile, when giving the story of this, 'I've never seen anything since which seemed so large as that $25.' Mr. Merriman bought out the stock of this last employer, giving notes, and commenced business without capital. "He was four years in business before he made a cent. In the next year he made $1,000 clear of expenses. In 1840 he removed to State Street. Until 1851 he was in the retail clothing business exclusively, and later was in the wholesale clothing business on Asylum Street, Hartford, Ct., also having a store in New York City. He continued in active business until 1873. In the 39 years, when he was in business, Mr. Merriman never asked for the extension of a note or paid less than 100 cents on a dollar. He did this in spite of the panics of 1857 and 1873. In insurance, banking and real estate business Mr. Merriman often proved the value of his judgment. In 1854 the late Henry Kellogg, in organizing the Phœnix Insurance Company, came early to consult with him, and he was chosen a member of the first board of directors and held that position a long time. Mr. Merriman was for some years a director of the Aetna National Bank. At various times he greatly helped to develop realty in Hartford and East Hartford, and elsewhere. In 1854, when the old Whig party was giving place to the Republican party, Mr. Merriman became interested in politics. When Fremont ran against Buchanan, Mr. Merriman took charge of the campaign in Hartford, conducting meetings in schoolhouses with Joseph P. Hawley and others. In 1864 he was chosen state senator. He was also selectman and town auditor." M. (first), 1838, Eliza Beaumont, who d. soon after; daughter of Levi Beaumont; m. (second), April 10, 1844, Jane Beaumont, b. Aug. 21, 1819; d. (5) Octavia Merriman, b. April 21, 1858; d. Feb. 17, 1899. The Brunswick, Me., School Report for 1899 says: "The schools of Brunswick, Me., were much shocked by the death of this beloved teacher. Her service in our schools was briefly as follows: She began as an assistant in the Center Street Primary School in the fall of 1876, and her work there was so good as to obtain a favorable mention in the school report of that year. In the fall of 1877 she was chosen principal of that school. In 1881 she became assistant in the Intermediate School and the very next year was promoted to the Grammar School, where she remained until her death. The impression which she always made of physical strength and vigor made her sudden death all the more startling. It is difficult to sum up her work in a few words but the present generation will need no such summing up. She will remain in the minds of her pupils through life, as an untiring, unselfish, intelligent worker for the highest good."

APPENDIX.

NOTE 1.—Mr. Timothy Dunning Merryman's account of his trip over the Plains: "We crossed the Mississippi River Sept. 5, 1853, with a train of 12 wagons, one of these drawn by five yoke of oxen and having two drivers to each. Two horses were attached to each of our 12 wagons. In our party were 30 men and 24 women and children. We travelled through Iowa and Missouri without trouble and camped on the banks of the Missouri River, at the point where St. Joseph now stands, for a few days. Early in May I was sent across the Missouri River into the Indian Territory which was all the land west of the river then, to see how the pasturage was. I saw a sight which made by blood boil. A negro boy had attempted to escape to freedom and several men caught him with ropes, like a wild beast. They took him back to slavery and I could only pity him. I went out ten or fifteen miles and returned with the report that the grass was good, and on May 5 we started across the river for the land of the Indians and buffalo. Our company chose a captain, whose name was Andrew Perrine. He had crossed the Plains in '49. His duty was to go before the train in the afternoon and field a suitable camping place, with plenty of water and grass. We would halt about two hours before sunset, turn loose the stock and prepare meals and beds for the night. Then the men were organized into guards, three men in each guard, and three changes each night, so that each man must guard every third or fourth night for three or four hours. This guard was to keep a sharp lookout for the Indians. We travelled across the country along the South Platte River to old Fort Henry, then to Fort Laramie and thence through the Black Hills to the Sweet Water River. At a place called Devil's Gap I had the misfortune to break my wrist. There was no doctor in the train, but though we thought we had set it all right it has troubled me ever since. We crossed the divide in the Rocky Mountains, called the South Pass, where the waters flow eastward to the Mississippi River and westward to the Pacific Ocean. Very soon the Great American desert was reached and this was the worst part of the journey. Lack of water, scorching heat, night travel and reptiles were not pleasant. The sage bush, which we encountered next, was very disagreeable, as we often had to cut our way through it. Our oxen were lame and sore and we shod them with shoe leather. When one became too lame to go further, we traded it for another as best we could, for there were cattle kept by traders along the way. The road was lined with emigrant wagons as far as the eye could see. We got along with very little sickness in our company. We had to keep a careful guard of our stock at night, as there were many thieves lurking about, and one night two of our best horses were stolen. Next morning a company of five men went out to find these horses, my brother, Ira, and I being two of them. We tracked the thieves all day, but could not get along very fast, as it was along the Humboldt River bottom. Late in the afternoon we saw the Indians whom we had been pursuing entering a swamp covered with pools of water. In this they mired our horses. It seemed by the deep tracks that two Indians must have been on each horse. Three of our men left horses with the other two, of whom I was one, and tried to reach the horses on foot, but failing, and seeing a short way back to camp, they started for it, leaving the two men waiting. Finally, darkness compelled me to return. My brother, Ira, would have returned to us, if the captain had not been angry at his disappointment and so would not allow him to do so. We could have reached and caught the thieves, if we had not feared an ambush.

"Soon after this, our company began to break up through dissatisfaction with different circumstances, and before we reached the Sierra Nevada Mountains we were left alone. We crossed these mountains in September, about five and a half months after leaving the Mississippi River. Mr. John Jackson of Mercer County, Ill., owned the team and outfit. His brother-in-law, Reuben Shields, who was afterwards in the Civil War, and myself had charge of the teams. They were all in good condition on arriving at Stockton, Cal., except one, which we had traded on the way. We stopped on a river in Calaveras County after a long and tedious trip, much harder than going to war, it seems to me. We remained there for 10 years, teaming and mining for a short time, and returned by steamer to New York City. I did not make a big strike in California, but by diligence and economy I was enabled to save $500 a year. I worked my way over the Plains by driving a team and paying $75. On my way to Illinois I stopped in Washington and had a very pleasant talk with President Lincoln. I prospered on the farm in Illinois and gave generously to churches and colleges. In April, 1886, I moved to San Jacinto, Cal., and built the first house in the town of Florida. There we set out an orchard of all kinds of citrus fruit, etc. I moved to Los Angeles, Cal., in 1895. I now have 480 acres of land in Illinois, 160 acres in Nebraska and 204 acres in California."

A MOTHER'S LAMENT.

DR. T. J. MERRYMAN.

It was not in the roar of battle
  That my noble son went down:
And not from the path of duty
  He was called to receive a crown.

It was not where shell and bullet
  Mow down with a deadly wound,
But 'twas where the poison lurketh,
  Where a deadlier foe is found.

He fell not by Mauser bullets
  In the isles beyond the sea;
But went down in our own dear country
  Where to rum we bow the knee.

It was not behind entrenchments
  That my son's life-blood was shed;
But dishonored in the gutter
  There he bowed his aching head.

It was not on picket duty
  He received a fatal wound;
But where twines the deadly serpent,
  Where its poison fangs are found.

It was not where the brave and noble
  Are called to meet their death;
But 'twas where the drunkards gather,
  With alcoholic breath.

It was not a shell's explosion
  That laid his vitals bare;
But the appetite for liquor
  That caught him in its snare.

He died not for love of country,
  Nor his country's flag to save;
But the love of ardent spirits
  Was what hurled him to his grave.

He died not to save our nation
  And an honored grave to fill;
But to save the people's taxes
  Where they license men to kill.

He was not in his country's service
  To save a righteous cause;
But with thousands more he stumbled
  Through his country's license laws.

Why, oh, why grant men a license
  To sell what is known to kill,
And send mothers' percious darlings
  A drunkard's grave to fill?

For, oh! when a drunkard dieth,
  How it pierces a mother's breast;
For his spirit can never enter
  That home of the good and blest.

I entreat you, Christian voter,
Hear and heed a mother's call;
Do remove this curse of curses,
Or a thousand more will fall.

NOTE 5.—Fuller records of Harriet O. Barker (p. 18).
